The Dialogic Classroom

I was introduced to the concept of dialogic learning about six years ago, and it has led to an incredible journey of discovery and learning. Since dialogic learning is all about utilizing discussion, I decided to explain these concepts and ideas in a series of webinar-type videos. The first one introduces and explains the concept of dialogic learning and the implications of the research.

Now that you have an idea of what dialogic learning is, I want to talk to you about a few different ways that I have incorporated these practices into my middle years' ELA classroom. The first way is through student choice and book clubs.

The final video includes ideas on how to incorporate these same concepts but on a larger scale (multi-class and even multi-school) through the integration of technology.
